

“Out of the Frying Pan”

by Larry Portzline, copyright 2017

Opening narration:

Hanson and Leila Quickel may look like a pair of elderly country bumpkins just off the bus in the big city. But the truth, as we’re about to find out, is often like the name of the vehicle they blew in on—a zephyr; a gust of hot air that conveyed this seemingly harmless old couple out of the boondocks . . . and into the Twilight Zone.

Closing narration:

Just like the wind, the truth often blows icy cold in winter . . . and hot as the devil in summer. Either way, if it gets through the cracks in your foundation, you may not make it through the season. Just ask that honest old pair the Quickels. But hurry—because their zephyr is about to leave town . . . and make another stop in the Twilight Zone.
