Opening narration:

The innocuous red envelope that Harold has just received summons a new change in his relationship with his wife. It is not by his choice but the music stopped long ago and now the piper needs paying. Inside this unwanted paper visitor is his personal invitation to his future and the Twilight Zone.

Closing narration:

He made a promise and kept it and they are together once more. For even in the darkest hours of man's failures, love knows no bounds or mediums in spirit or otherwise. Harold vowed he would return to the woman he loved and he did so, clearly...in the Twilight Zone.
