Opening narration:

Identity theft is not new. The method to steal it has evolved with the help of the internet over the decades. Over time, it has brought us www.com sites, Instagram, Facebook, Snapchat and other social media platforms where identity theft and profiles made it easier to fool people and question who is who. Social Media surfer, Brad Nicolas, will have the task to distinguish the difference between reality and The Twilight Zone.

Closing narration:

Writer Kurt Vonnegut said: “We are what we pretend to be.” Brad learned soon enough to trust his instincts and judge who to trust when he encounters a person through social media. A lesson not confined to the Twilight Zone or the internet, but in real life as well.
